

INTERVIEW Mr. KORELLAS (K Milios and SIA OE, GR)

I am involved in Education for many years as owner of a Private Vocational School.

The profession of educator give to us so many challenges every year.

Every new group of students has different characteristics, different ways to approach them, different needs and different demands.

Things become more complicated when the group of students does not belong in the same nationality and it has different cultural, religious and ethnic background. In these cases the educator must adapt the methodology according to the real needs and characteristics of the group.

In our days the teaching is becoming in many cases multinational and multilingual because of the mobility of the people especially the young people.

The migrants' and the refugees'' mobility increases the needs for multilingual teaching to multilingual audiences and the challenges for the language teachers are bigger and more complex.

On the other hand we participate in EU projects in which the knowledge of the required characteristics of the multicultural training are very useful, so the aims and the products of the project will be very useful to us.
